Summary of reasons for decision:

The video file is deemed to be objectionable under s3(2)(d) of the Films, Videos, and Publications Classification Act 1993 because it tends to promote and support the use of excrement in association with sexual conduct. The video extensively depicts two women engaged in coprophilia and coprophagia in a manner that is intended to sexually arouse – as well as shock – the viewer. The Classification Office acknowledges the fact that ‘2 girls 1 cup’ has been widely viewed internationally, mainly for entertaining shock value purposes, and has considered whether or not this mitigates the impact of it on the public good. The fact remains however that the video tends to promote and support the use of excrement in association with sexual conduct. All publications that satisfy this criteria under s3(2)(d) must be deemed objectionable under current New Zealand law. The objectionable classification interferes with the right to freedom of expression, but it is the only outcome consistent with Parliament's intention to prevent such material from being publically available.
